

On behalf of the Transatlantic Academy and the Asia Centre, and with the collaboration of SciencesPo.

we would like to invite you to

The Rise of China: Views of Key Countries

Workshop, Paris – Monday March 28, 2011

CERI-Sciences Po

(56, rue Jacob, 75006 Paris)

09.00-10.30 American and European Views on the Rise of Asia

Chair: Stephen Szabo, Executive Director, Transatlantic Academy

- James Goldgeier, Professor, Political Science, George Washington University; Transatlantic Academy fellow
- Daniel Deudney, Associate Professor of Political Science, Johns Hopkins University; Transatlantic Academy fellow
- François Godement, Professor, Sciences Po; Director for Strategy, Asia Centre, Senior Fellow, European Council on Foreign Relations

Debate

10.30-12.00 Views from the Region: India and Japan

Chair: Christophe Jaffrelot, Senior Research Fellow, CERI-Sciences Po

- Swaran Singh, Professor, School of International Studies, Jawahrlal Nehru University
- Iskander Rehman, Visiting International Fellow, Sciences Po; Transatlantic Academy fellow
- Kubo Fumiaki, Professor, University of Tokyo

Debate

12.15-13.30 How China sees its Image

- Prof. Cui Liru, President, China Institutes Of Contemporary International Relations - to be confirmed -
- Eberhard Sandschneider, Director, German Society for Foreign Policy
- François Godement, Professor, Sciences Po; Director for Strategy, Asia Centre, Senior Fellow, European Council on Foreign Relations

12.30-14.00 Luncheon Buffet and Close of the Workshop

The workshop will bring together specialists on Asia and international relations to discuss how the rise of China is viewed in Europe, the United States, India and Japan. The Fellows of the Transatlantic Academy have just completed a collaborative report entitled Global Shift- Western Drift: A Strategy for Atlantic Renewal at the main findings of which will be presented in the workshop. We hope you can join us for this discussion.

RSVP: Edouard de Tinguy, GMF Paris office, edetinguy@gmfus.org
Rozenn Jouannigot, Asia Centre, r.jouannigot@centreasia.eu

The Transatlantic Academy, a partnership of the German Marshall Fund of the United States, The Ebelin und Gerd Bucerius ZEIT Stiftung, the Robert Bosch Stiftung, and the Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation was established in 2007 with the objective of bringing together four accomplished and talented scholars and two younger promising fellows, half from Europe and half from North America, to

Washington for ten months to conduct research, actively participate in debates, lead seminars and discussions, and disseminate their research. The Academy provides a logistical and intellectual home base for in-depth debates and research inspired by contemporary political, economic, and social issues. The Transatlantic Academy is intended as an innovative and powerful means of complementing the North American and European academic and Think Tank Communities

A Research Capability in the dynamics and fabric of international relations

Founded in August 2005 by François Godement and a team of researchers and experts on contemporary Asia. Asia Centre undertakes research, initiates discussions and produces publications on strategic and economic international relations as well as the current transformation of the Asia-Pacific region.

At the intersection of university research and public and private decision-making, Asia Centre's researchers and network of partners identify and analyze the significant issues of Eastern Asia. This research is done in conjunction with notable European, American and, of course, Asian centres specialized in the subject. Asia Centre initiates international discussions and its noted expertise gives it access to numerous specialized committees and research groups. The results form the basis for publications and original reports.

